

TRICORE

The vendor of reagents needed to perform lactic acid testing (LACT) is experiencing a disruption in its supply chain. It is expected that this reagent shortage will last at least to October. In order to reserve this test for the most critical patients, TriCore will only perform lactic acid testing for inpatients. All outpatient orders for lactic acid testing will be cancelled effective 9/9/21 until the shortage is resolved. We apologize for the inconvenience and appreciate your understanding.

